Midtown called top spot to retire

Midtown Nashville is one of the 35 best big-city neighborhoods in which to retire, a report from Money magazine says.

The report praises Midtown for its ample access to parks and stores, a population that includes both college students and professionals, and its proximity to Baptist Hospital and Vanderbilt University Medical Center. The report also lists a drawback: that Midtown residents have to drive to get to downtown music venues.

The report looked at neighborhoods in 30 of the nation's biggest cities. Evaluations were done by the staff of Money.
